FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

The Gospel we read this Sunday shows the power and greatness of Jesus' love. When he receives the news of his friend's death Jesus is far from the village of his friends, Martha, Mary and Lazarus. It was dangerous for Jesus to return to Judea-he had been threatened several times-but he decided to go anyway. We discover that he cannot stay far from suffering and from the drama his friend Lazarus was living. For Jesus, friendship is a deep aspect of life. It is always there.

Jesus teaches us through example that it is not to draw away from the suffering of our friends. How many times, though, do men and women flee from the suffering of others, and doing so add to the drama of evil the bitterness of loneliness? And in a few days, it will happen to Jesus too, when he remains alone in the garden of Gethsemane and sweats drops of blood in his anguish.

The Lord's love knows no boundaries, not even death. He wants the impossible. That tomb is not the final destination for Jesus' friends. This is why he shouts: "Lazarus come out!" His friend hears Jesus' voice and as it was written: "The sheep recognize his voice" and also: the good shepherd "calls his own sheep by name and leads them out" (Jn 10:3). The prophet Ezekiel had already reported God's words: "I am going to open your graves, and bring you up from your graves, O my people" (Ez 37:12). Lazarus listens and he comes out. Jesus does not speak to a dead man, but a living one. If anything, one who was asleep and maybe that's why he shouts. He invites the others to take the cloth off Lazarus.

Releasing Lazarus from the tomb, Jesus is actually releasing each of us from our selfishness, our coldness, our indifference, from our dead feelings. An ancient eastern tradition says that, once risen, Lazarus ate only sweets. This is to emphasize that the life given by the Lord is sweet and beautiful; that the feelings the Lord puts on our hearts are strong and tender, robust and loving, and they defeat any bitterness and sourness. "I am the resurrection and the life," said the Lord.

Lastly our Lord calls out: "Lazarus, come out!" Jesus calls each of us by name. Our names mean everything about our lives. He defends our life from evil. His love is personal.

We are pleased to welcome Adam Bockman as the Cathedral Parish's new Director of Finance and Administration. Adam brings both experience and a strong commitment to stewardship, and we are grateful for his willingness to serve in this important role. As he begins his work among us, we ask your prayers for him as he comes to know the many dimensions of the Cathedral's life.

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Sometimes God Saves Us Through, Not From, Our Troubles

Whatever difficulties we're enduring in our lives can be walked into the Holy Week Jesus endured

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

Do prepositions matter?

Our English teachers would be delighted at the question! They might be even more delighted to know that this grammatical question has both theological and spiritual importance — an importance highlighted by the readings for this last week before Holy Week.

To illustrate the point, consider what St. Fulgentius of Ruspe said in a letter which the Church gives us in the Office of Readings this week: "[Christ] is at once priest and sacrifice, God and temple. He is the priest through whom we have been reconciled, the sacrifice by which we have been reconciled, the temple in which we have been reconciled, the God with whom we have been reconciled." Through, by, in, with — each of these prepositions draws our attention to an important dimension of Christ's sacrifice on the cross. We would miss something theologically important if we weren't aware of each of those dimensions.

What about the spiritual importance of prepositions? It's illustrated by the Scripture readings for the week.

This week we hear the story of Susanna, falsely accused of adultery in the Book of Daniel. The Book of Numbers tells us about Israel being attacked by serpents and Moses mounting a bronze serpent on a pole. The prophet Jeremiah tells us how the people are hatching plots against him. And the Gospel of John tells us of the plan to kill Jesus and the prophecy that He will die for the people.

Something bad happens to every one of those people. Every one of them cries out to God. Every one of them is heard by God. Every one of them is rescued by God. In those respects, all the stories are the same.

The crucial difference comes in the prepositions. Susanna, Israel and Jeremiah are all rescued by God from death. Jesus, by contrast, is rescued through His death. And that, friends, is enormously important for us.

When we face troubles and cry out to God, we want God to save us from our troubles. And that's OK! Sometimes He does. But when we slip into expecting God to rescue us from our troubles, that's where we go wrong. Sometimes — as with Jesus — God saves us through our troubles. And that hurts. The cross always hurts.

St. Leo the Great put it this way in another reading the Church gives us this week: "Through the cross the faithful receive strength from weakness, glory from dishonor, life from death." There it is again: through. Such a subtle difference in language; such an enormous difference in the life of a disciple.

The readings this week are straining toward Jesus' trials in Holy Week. I think they're also inviting us to something. We can take whatever troubles we're carrying to the altar. If we do, then whatever "holy week" we're enduring in our lives can be walked into the Holy Week Jesus endured. If we walk our little "holy week" into Jesus' big Holy Week, then these encouraging words of St. Athanasius will be realized in us: "If we follow Christ closely, we shall be allowed, even on this earth, to stand as it were on the threshold of the heavenly Jerusalem, and enjoy the contemplation of the everlasting feast."

Stewardship Reflection

"Jesus said to her, 'Did I not tell you that if you believe you will see the glory of God?'" JOHN 11:40

Many of us say that we believe in God. We attend Sunday Mass and participate in parish events. But when life gets hard and the pressure is on, when things aren't going our way, do we really believe? Do we really put our trust in the Lord? When we live a life of gratitude, recognizing all that we have been given, we really do see that God is providing for our needs. Living a grateful and generous life allows us to see God's active presence in our daily lives and we become "partakers of the divine nature."
